Clearstory responds to COVID-19

Clearstory Clients and Collaborators:

The health and safety of our employees and communities is our first priority. As such, starting today, Monday March 16th, our team will largely be working remotely to help reduce the spread of the COVID-19 virus in our communities.

Clearstory has many technology-based collaborative tools that will allow us to continue to seamlessly serve our clients and projects during this time. We will do everything in our power to meet ongoing deadlines and commitments throughout this public health crisis.

Please note, email will be the most effective way to communicate with us. If you have any questions or concerns do not hesitate to contact me at: julie.v@clearstorysf.com

We encourage everyone to do what they can to keep their colleagues and families safe. We hope our collective actions will make a positive impact on the public health of our communities and together we get through this faster and healthier.

Sincerely,
Julie Vogel
President
